Auld & White Constructors (AWC) was retained to construct the Compassion Center for One More Child in Jacksonville. The campus expansion supports resource distribution and program operations. The project included construction of a multi-purpose facility and supporting resource space designed to accommodate a range of programs and services.

The project features a central distribution and operations hub alongside a Family Resource Center with flexible space for training, administration, and community use. Through disciplined cost management and coordination across multiple trades, the project was completed below the original contract value while maintaining quality and performance.
